Prolactin release from the pituitary gland in relation to the glucose content of the milieu. Prolactin release from the pituitary gland was studied under standardized conditions. Pituitary glands of female rats kept on a high carbohydrate diet (40% carbohydrate) released more prolactin than animals fed a low carbohydrate diet (6% carbohydrate). The pituitary glands of female rats kept on a low carbohydrate diet showed increased spontaneous release of prolactin when incubated in the presence of a glucose-rich medium. The concentration of insulin in the same medium did not influence prolactin release. These results, indicating that glucose stimulates prolactin release, support the concept that prolactin is released to increase lactogenesis and thus maternal care. While violent conflicts are often personal and difficult to comprehend, they also have a strategic dimension. If you are an underdog who has the underdog's share of luck (at times, the army of the underdog is on the winning side, against all odds), then you have a strategic advantage. When the red team is so far behind on the score line, then you have a great advantage, to turn around a losing situation. Guideline for winning: Winning the hearts and minds of your enemy through fear, intimidation and terror. This should also include acquiring the facts. Intimidation is mostly psychological, and you must realize the enemy also wants the same thing you do. Their battlefield is your living room. You need to show them that you are the ultimate enemy. How do you know if you are doing enough 2d92ce491b
