tm. standard of real-time analysis and correction of issues such as system delay and frequency response. You can evaluate any audio channel from every input sound source on a computer (Windows/Mac/Linux) and display graphs that show critical characteristics of your sound system in real-time. You can start or stop any analysis at any time. In addition to detailed charts and graphs, you can use any combination of external application parameters, such as gain, level, gain-related thresholds, filters, PFL or other, to control the sound system. You can set up any number of analyzers and processors (to obtain a complex mix of different parameters) and save their settings for a future use. You can also use the built-in floating-point automation to control any parameter with a number. All parameters are independent and can be combined in any way. The analyzers and processors can be controlled in an automated manner by MIDI or timecode, so that they are automatically started and stopped as you make changes. Control over the analyzers and processors in an automated manner allows you to create your own automation sequences. Currently, the program is available for Windows, Mac, and Linux. System requirements {#sec2} ===== 1. 64-bit Windows operating system; 2. Intel, AMD or IBM compatible CPU with floating point operations support; 3. Microsoft Windows (7, 8, 8.1, 10) or GNU/Linux; 4. Supported and tested to work with Logic, Ableton, Cubase, Ardour and similar software. How to use the tool {#sec3} 1. Install the newest version of SystemTune, available on the AFMG website (); 2. Download the latest SVN version of the application from the website (); 3. Run SystemTune; 4. Click the “+” sign, add the analyzers and processors you want to use and create the new process; 5. Create the automation for any selected analyzers and processors and start/stop the process by using automated parameters such as MIDI or timecode; 6. After you are done with the automation, click the “--◆
