Today I have prepared a post about how to import and then edit photos, especially those photos that are under the resolution of 300 dpi. However, when importing these types of photos, there are some photos which do not get saved. Usually photos that are under the resolution of 300 dpi get saved into the folder of their own file type such as JPG. Therefore, I'll be using Photoshop to edit these types of photos. 1. Converting and Saving the Under Res Images Now I will be taking a few photo examples. First let's open up Photoshop (I recommend you download a Photoshop photo test to see what you are doing when you're working on a photo). Navigate to: File > Open Import > Photo Select Camera RAW Now you will be able to see the different types of files your camera or scanner has. Here I have taken a photo of my iPhone which is a RAW File. You can upload the RAW file into Photoshop and then convert it to a TIFF, JPG, etc. The image I am going to show you here is the RAW image from the iPhone. Now I am going to import this photo and convert it to a JPG image. Now the next step is to Save the photo. I am going to convert the RAW file to a JPG file. Once I do that I can then open the image in Photoshop and then save the image as a JPG file. Now when I open the image I can see the photo has been imported and saved into a JPG file. However, if I open the original RAW image, I will not be able to see that photo. Next, I am going to check to see how to edit the resolution of a photo using Photoshop. If you are using the full version of Photoshop, then go to: Window > Image Resample and Resize Where it says % DPI, change it from 300 to 72 Now I'll use the command A to convert it into a JPEG. Now look what happened, you can see that I now have an image with a DPI of 72. Now you can see that I had to download the RAW image first so that when I imported it into Photoshop, the RAW image was still there. 2. Using Photoshop Elements First you need to install Photoshop Elements 05a79cecff

VillageFest VillageFest is a free, annual family friendly event held by The Village of West Haven, Connecticut. It is held annually on the first weekend of September, usually before Labor Day weekend. VillageFest is a celebration of all things West Haven and the surrounding areas, and involves many activities to please residents of all ages. In its early years, it was organized by the Board of Trustees of The Village of West Haven. Since the 1988 VillageFest, it has been organized by a Village Council/Management Committee. Many areas of The Village are open to the public for limited or unlimited hours throughout the four days of the festival. These are organized by separate committees and include: Village Square: Live entertainment is featured on stages in the Square (aka Market Place) from 10 AM on Friday and from 9 AM on Saturday and Sunday. Family Fun Park: In addition to the regular rides and activities on the Playground, the Activities Area is open on the Playground from 10 AM on Friday until 8 PM on Sunday. West Haven Public Library: The library is open from 9 AM until 9 PM on Saturday and Sunday and also features a stage for performances throughout the day. On Saturday and Sunday, the pace of VillageFest is very relaxed and residents often return to the Village throughout the day. VillageFest has been held annually since the 1980s, with the exception of the 2002 edition when the festival was cancelled due to lack of sponsorship. Although VillageFest has been advertised as a 4-day event, it is still advertised as only 1 day. In 2019, due to large crowds, the event was cancelled. KASHMIRI PANDITS: The Kashmiri Pandit community settled in India due to the political turmoil in the valley. The Kashmiri Hindus have decided to return to their homeland once their rights are guaranteed by the Indian government. For the Kashmiri Pandits, it was the poor leadership which forced them to leave their homeland due to which they still feel like strangers in their own country. The most important aspect of the Indian Pandit community is their strong attachment towards their Hindu identity. If it comes to a point of no return then they will leave for good. strong and wanted to stay for good. They had heard of the bad governance prevalent in their homeland and wanted to settle for some time in India. But after a point of no return has been reached, their initial optimism and hopes of helping their homeland have dried up. Because of this, there is a threat to their identity too. Pandits are a religious community and do not want to lose their Hindu identity. They would not just settle for anything and they want
