He is an example of a master of Photoshop manipulation. He has a number of works that are commercially available, including images of the Smashing Pumpkins. Photomontage is a form of collage. More commonly seen in small magazines and publications, each page is a montage of images layered on top of a montage. But his is a little different from others, because he really is manipulating the photos into totally unique images. He gathers them together and draws on the subject matter and colors, making them cohesive and new. His website states that his work is "formed by me in an attempt to mix up, re-think, and re-work the snapshot idea of photography" by collating different images to make a totally new image. He asks that the viewer pay attention to the colors and subject matter of the individual photos and see if that is what makes this particular image come to life. You may find his work at www.jimdeneese.com. **Figure 5-6:** In _Creative Portraits III_, Jim Deneese was allowed to touch up some of his images. | --- | --- ## Starting with an Image Photoshop offers multiple editing and retouching tools that provide many levels of sophistication. Protein kinase C-theta contributes to osteoclastogenesis induced by Receptor Activator of NF-kappaB Ligand and macrophage colony-stimulating factor in RAW 264.7 cells. Receptor activator of NF-kappaB (RANK) ligand (RANKL) and macrophage colony-stimulating factor (M-CSF) induced Ca<sup>2+</sup> release from the endoplasmic reticulum (ER) to the cytosol and activated the NF-kappaB signaling pathways to promote osteoclastogenesis. Recent studies demonstrated that protein kinase C-theta (PKC-theta) can regulate the NF-kappaB signaling pathways. The aim of this study is to determine whether PKC-theta contributes to RANKL- and M-CSF-induced osteoclastogenesis in RAW 264.7 cells. RANKL and M-CSF treatment induced PKC-theta translocation to the nucleus, and PKC-theta knockdown by small interfering RNA attenuated the expression of NF-kappaB-dependent pro-osteoclastogenic genes (including TRAF6, NFATc1, and NFATc2) and subsequent osteoclastogenesis. Furthermore, PKC-theta overexpression enhanced NFATc1 and NFATc2 expression and increased the formation of multinucleated giant cells. The effects of PKC-theta on osteoclastogenesis were dependent on PKC-theta phosphorylation at Thr(505) and not Ser(679), and could be largely reversed by the co-treatment of NF-kappaB-specific inhibitor and by the expression of dominant negative NF-kappaB in RAW 264.7 cells. Taken together, our data indicate that PKC-theta contributes to RANKL and M-CSF-induced NF-kappaB-dependent pro-osteoclastogenic genes expression and subsequent osteoclastogenesis via phosphorylation at Thr(505).
